Citizens' Thoughts Differ on How to Solve Princeton's Affordable Housing Problem

Until March, when Calton Homes filed a Mount Laurel suit against the Township, few residents understood, or were even aware of, the implications of the 1983 Supreme Court decision.

Mount Laurel II, as it is called, put teeth in the 1975 Mount Laurel opinion that developing suburban municipalities could not use their zoning powers to exclude low and moderate-income residents. Mount Laurel II provided a "builder's remedy" and appointed judges to hear the resulting suits.

Now, after nearly two months of municipal meetings on ways of meeting the Mount Laurel fair share obligations, Princeton residents are meeting in each other's homes to talk over the consequences of density bonuses on the infrastructure and to weigh the merits of one plan as against another.

They are making themselves knowledgeable about technical matters of policy and implementation. They are learning what are the various bills before the state legislature as that branch of government somewhat belatedly tries to address the problem, both in the cities as well as in the suburbs.

To continue the dialogue in print, Town Topics this week interviewed several citizens who have kept abreast of the issue of affordable housing in Princeton.

One such citizen is Harry Sayen, former vice chair-

Proposal for "Flexible" Housing Ordinance Will Be Heard by Planning Board Thursday

Planning Board leaders have offered a new proposal for a "flexible" affordable housing ordinance that may be Plan X that Township Committee has been looking for as a viable solution to meeting fair share housing requirements set forth in the Mount Laurel II decision.

The proposal will be discussed this Thursday, July 26, at a special meeting of the Planning Board. The meeting will begin at 7:30 in the Valley Road building. At the time, the Planning Board may decide to recommend the proposal, either as drafted by Margen Penick, Elizabeth Hutter and Hans Sander, or with some modifications, to Township Committee for ordinancing.

An ordinance implementing affordable housing recommendations of housing consultants Allan Mallach and John Nolon was introduced by Committee in June, but it has been criticized by residents and officials alike as not being "in the best interests of the Princeton community." Specifically, critics point to the number of acres of available land that would be used up, the number of market units that would be created, the increase in population and car trips.

The thrust of the new proposal, as outlined by Mrs. Penick to Township Committee last Monday evening, is three-fold. It calls for 350 units to be produced or subsidized by developers under a density bonus program using large lots and specific sites. Another 310 units would be produced by a housing trust in existing or new, site-specific residential housing (RH) zones.

These units would be funded by a contribution on all future development, commercial as well as residential, which is not already in the density bonus or housing trust program. Even new educational development might be included, Mrs. Penick suggested, in answer to a question from Committee.

As the third component, some 100 units could be funded by bonding and taxation. Mrs. Penick said this number could be increased if the Township's fair share was judged to be more than the 735 affordable housing units by 1990 which was the housing consultants best estimate in their March report.

State in Agreement to Buy Land from Builder for Rt. 92

A Township resident has obtained confirmation from sources within the Department of Transportation that the DOT signed an agreement with a Montgomery developer several months ago for the acquisition of land to build state Route 92.

Mayor Winthrop S. Pike alluded to such an agreement at a recent Township Committee meeting. The mayor then read a letter he had written Transportation Commissioner John Sheridan urging the department to purchase land along the 1972 "preserved" alignment, which Princeton favors, before so much of it is bought by developers that the cost of acquiring it and building the bypass becomes prohibitive.

The DOT subsequently denied that it had entered into any such agreement with a developer. But Laurence Glasberg, a Herrontown Road resident who was greatly disturbed when the department made a similar agreement last year with Calton Homes without notifying the Township, obtained confirmation of the fact from a source within the department who preferred not to be named.

Renovations Begin on First Seven of 22 Homes In John-Witherspoon Area Using $85,000 Grant

In the soft light of dusk, people move out to their porches to enjoy the slight cooling that comes with evening. Neighbors walk by and exchange "good evening's." Children play, and the elderly enjoy the comforts of homes in which many have lived all their lives.

Princeton's John Witherspoon area, with its modest houses set side by side and its old-fashioned neighborliness, is unique. Its preservation is vital not only to its residents, but to the entire town. But it's also a neighborhood in which many of the homes are over 80 years old. Time has made its inroads, and a number of houses are seriously in need of repair.

Now, through the Neighborhood Preservation Grant awarded to the Borough last year, many needed repairs will be made. Work on the first seven of 22 houses to be assisted through the $85,000 grant has begun.

The first home owners to be helped through the program include four elderly women, an elderly couple, a young family, and a young single parent. Of the first 22, 14 households are headed by women, and ten are elderly.

The program, coordinated by Michael Floyd, is geared to people with low and moderate incomes. "This is not a poverty program."

ON THE PORCH: Standing in front of their John Street home, one of the first houses to be renovated through the Neighborhood Preservation grant program, are Joyce Fitch, son Courtney, 9, and daughter Ebony, 14.

Renovations

Yet three or four families told Mr. Floyd that they didn't apply for the grants, even though their homes could use renovating, because they wanted to be sure the money went to low-income families.

The majority of people to be aided through these grants have lived over 30 years in their homes. Out of the 22, at least three-quarters have lived in the John Witherspoon neighborhood all their lives.

Calla Garner, a gently spoken woman of "over-60," moved into her house at 220 John Street in 1945. She and her husband, Nelson, had lived on Jackson Street. "But we left there when we realized that our neighborhood was going to be torn down." (Jackson Street was obliterated during the Palmer Square development.)

Before her husband's death 11 years ago, Mrs. Garner had had her roof replaced. The work was not done properly, and even though it has been fixed many times, it still leaks. Now she will receive a new main roof and rear kitchen roof. And, given that the contractors have to abide by five single-spaced pages of specifications, there's no doubt the job will be done right this time.

Other work on her home includes replacement of windows, repair of window frames, and installation of new gutters and downspouts.

Poor Repairs in Past. The shades drawn in the front room against the afternoon sun, Mrs. Garner explained the importance of keeping up a house. She spoke about the many repairs she had paid for that were either not done at all or were done poorly. "The contractors wouldn't even come back to look after I called them."

In a life marked by hard work, she looks forward now to having her home finally properly repaired. On the side of the front room, near the table filled with photographs of family and friends, are the drapes she has removed as she waits for the carpenters to begin.

The grant selection process began last summer, when John Witherspoon residents were invited to attend meetings during which the neighborhood revitalization program was explained.

Those who submitted applications were visited by Michael Floyd, who checked each house inside and out to see the kinds of repairs that might be needed. This was followed by a return visit in which Mr. Floyd was accompanied by building experts from Neighborhood Housing Services of Trenton, specialists in this type of work.

A highly detailed work write-up was then prepared for those home owners whose applications were approved. Bidding for contracts was the next step. Four or five contractors bid for each of the 22 jobs, and four contractors are currently at work.

Program 'A Blessing.' Joyce Fitch, a 37-year-old divorced mother of two children, calls the neighborhood revitalization program "a blessing." After buying her house at 238 John Street from the Witherspoon-Jackson Corporation in 1978, she began the long process of renovation.

"When we bought the house it needed lots of major things, such as a new roof, a new heating system, complete rewiring, and new plumbing. It was just a shell," said Ms. Fitch.

She took a "huge" loan to finance many of these major repairs. But much remained to be done. So, for five years, she worked two jobs. In addition to her full-time job as office manager at the YWCA, Ms. Fitch worked evenings at the Public Library and, later, at Gallup.

"I really hated to be out all day and then go at night and leave the kids," she said. Now, with the grant paying for still-needed electrical and plumbing work, a new rear kitchen roof, chimney flashing, and some carpentry, she can spend evenings with her children, 14-year-old Ebony and 9-year-old Courtney.

The work being done on her house will make it easier for Ms. Fitch to remain in a town that she is a part of, and that she loves.

"I want to remain in Princeton. The schools are excellent and John Street is centrally located near the library, schools, "Y" and shopping. I think the location, between Philadelphia and New York, is the best place to be."

Michael Floyd expects that the Borough will receive an additional Neighborhood Preservation Program grant from the Department of Community Affairs for at least another $85,000. "There's some talk, initiated by the State, of a larger amount," he said. There is also the possibility that the neighborhood revitalization program will receive funding for two additional years.

Medical Center Wing, Clustered Housing Units On Foulet Tract, Gain Planning Board Approval

In a relaxed mood, and with very nearly the full complement of members, the Planning Board unanimously granted the request of Princeton Medical Center for permission to build a wing onto its Princeton House unit.

Benedict Yedlin's application for site plan approval for 37 clustered units off Cherry Hill Road in the Foulet tract also sailed through the Planning Board last Thursday night with very little trouble. Dwight O. North sought in vain to have the Board impose conditions on the builder to prevent additional sewer hook-ups until the present overloaded conditions in the sewer system are corrected. George Adriance abstained "in a modest gesture" to Mr. North, but otherwise this vote, too, was unanimous.

In the course of hearing the Medical Center application, Planning Board members learned that the addition to Princeton House would serve a quasi-commercial function. In answer to questions raised by Margen Penick on the uses of the laboratory rooms that would be housed in the 1400-square foot wing, Medical Center President Dennis Doody acknowledged "an arrangement" with Squibb pharmaceutical company for the testing of certain drugs on hospital patients before final F.D.A. approval.

Mr. Doody mentioned hypertension medication and new ostomy products, but cosmetics are also presently being tested for reactions to the chemicals that are used in their manufacture. He said clinical pharmaceutical companies "all over the country" seek out sites where drugs can be checked out. Hospital technicians run the program, he noted, not company employees. Nurses draw blood samples and run urine tests and the results are used in evaluating the drug that is in the process of final approval for commercial sale.

Mrs. Penick asked if this was not an expanion of previous commercial use by Princeton House and if so, whether it was an appropriate use for a "highly-prized property." Mr. Doody said the Medical Center "is not interested in doing this with anyone else" and said the income that is produced helps to reduce the overall health care costs.

"We could have put psychiatrists in that wing and put the lab someplace else," he remarked, implying that in that case the Planning Board would never have known about the commercial activities. He was thanked for being above-board about the plans by several members of the board.

Once a Nursing Home. The addition will be connected to the rear of the rear-most spoke of the 86-bed mental health unit. Princeton House was built originally as a 125-bed private nursing home that went bankrupt. It was bought by the Medical Center in 1971 with the aim of decentralizing its mental health division.

The number of beds was reduced to 86, and a whole wing that was formerly patient rooms became doctors' offices. Over the years, the use has grown slowly, Mr. Doody said, until "we have people sitting on top of each other."

In evaluating the use of space within the unit, the Medical Center has sought not to disrupt the existing layout, so that if need be offices could revert to patient rooms. The new addition, which extends into the woods at the rear of the property and is not visible from Mt. Lucas or Herrontown Roads, will include doctors' offices as well as the lab space in question.

Planning Board members were concerned that with land at a premium, both at Princeton House and at the hospital unit on Witherspoon Street, the Medical Center would be back asking for more space if some of their space was going for these quasi-commercial purposes. After approval was granted, Aristides Georgantas told Mr. Doody: "You've had a certain signal from the board. At a certain point, might these things (commercial drug testing) be domiciled in New Brunswick?"

Subdivision. Benedict Yedlin's plans to subdivide a 60-acre parcel on Cherry Hill Road where the old Foulet house stood met with little resistance from Planning Board members. Mr. Yedlin plans two cul-de-sacs, one to be called Andrews Lane after the original builder of the old mansion, the other Foulet Drive. There will 19 single family houses clustered along one cul-de-sac, 18 on the other, each house on a 3/4-acre lot. Some 32 acres will be left open space, most of it as a buffer to homes on Red Hill Road.

Mr. Yedlin plans to connect the two cul-de-sacs with a grass-topped fire-lane and to run a bike path the entire length of the property along Cherry Hill Road. He also proposes to widen the road by four feet and to improve both the sharp curve and steep hill in the process. He agreed to create an easement along his property line at Red Hill Road to permit residents along that very narrow roadway to continue a practice of "digging out" parking areas for themselves and their guests.

Part of the property is quite swampy and wet, but Mr. Yedlin plans to reduce the flow by three-quarters by a storm drainage system connected to the culvert on Cherry Hill Road. Laurel Lovrek is the architect for the proposed development. Thomas Jamieson presented the application to the board as attorney.

Other. In other business, the Planning Board granted permission to the Princeton Packet to count seven parking spaces across Witherspoon Street to meet the parking requirement when it converts a residence at 242 Witherspoon Street into 1344-square feet of office space. Dr. Marc Drimmer was denied permission to erect a free-standing sign along Route 206 announcing the physician-tenants in No. 842 State Road, the former Princeton Bank building.

Planning Board members were concerned about precedence. Dr. Drimmer was not present to plead his case.

By Choir and Orchestra. The Princeton High School Choir won second place in its class and the Orchestra came in third in its class at the International Youth and Music Festival in Vienna.

"We're proud of them in every way," said Orchestra Director Portia Sonnenfeld. "And we're very grateful to the community for its support."

Choir Director William Trego noted that a wonderful cameraderie was built up during the trip. "The choir and orchestra worked together and helped each other in every way," he said.

There had been some feelings of competition between the choir and orchestra before the group left for Vienna, added Mr. Trego. "But working together, traveling together and rooming together changed that. This experience will strengthen the total music program in the high school.

The orchestra and choir performed 11 concerts in 12 days, a grueling schedule by any standard. But their hard work was recognized in the applause and good wishes of highly appreciative audiences.

Perhaps their best concert, according to Mrs. Sonnenfeld, was one they gave on July 15 in a lovely old church in Lebersdorf, outside of Vienna. "The choir and orchestra were at the top of their form; it was a very thrilling event."

At a concert in Baden, the students performed the "Radetsky March" of Johann Strauss, Sr. "The audience clapped in rhythm to this favorite piece and we were wildly applauded," said Mrs. Sonnenfeld.

The students, half of whom stayed abroad for further travel, attracted their own coterie. They signed autographs and were followed by a number of persons from one concert to another in the Vienna area.

Program announcements during each concert were made by native German-speaking students. The audiences were delighted, and showed their feelings by applauding each and every announcement.

Mr. Trego voiced his pleasure at the audiences throughout the tour, calling them "wonderful and very receptive." He said that the orchestra reached the greatest heights it had ever reached and the choir made everyone proud.

In recognition of the students' achievements, Township Mayor Winthrop S. Pike has officially proclaimed the week of July 23 through July 29 as "Princeton High School Choir and Orchestra Week."

PARTIES ARE PLANNED

In Freeze Voter Campaign. As a part of a nation-wide project to raise funds for the Freeze Voter campaign, five separate "countdown parties" will be held in Princeton on Sunday, July 29.

"Countdown" refers to the fact that July 29 will mark exactly 100 days before the national election on November 6. The Freeze Voter campaign, which is a nation-wide effort, is focused on electing to Congress and the Presidency supporters of a bilateral, verifiable nuclear weapons freeze between the United States and the Soviet Union.

Princeton hosts will be Phyllis Suber, 168 Guyot Avenue; Kurt Mislow, 38 MacLean Circle; Earl Lory, 339 Harbourton-Woodsville Road; Ruby and Leonard Newton, 90 Dempsey Avenue; and Richard Trenner, 100 Hunt Drive.

Anyone interested in attending one of these parties is urged to call the prospective host for the exact time and directions. Since the parties are fund-raising projects, contributions from guests will be expected.

Freeze Voter activities this summer have concentrated on collecting signed pledges from voters who promise that the positions of candidates on the nuclear weapons freeze will be "a key determining factor in how I vote."

These pledges have been obtained through monthly neighborhood canvasses. The ultimate purpose, according to Rachel Findley of Princeton, who is chairperson of the New Jersey canvassing effort, is to turn out "millions of Freeze Voters on election day.

"Now we need to raise funds so that we can inform all the signers of these pledges of their candidates' positions on nuclear arms issues," Ms. Findley said. "We will have costs connected with printing and postage, and we hope this weekend's parties will raise the funds we need."

Forty-five countdown parties have been scheduled in various cities and towns in New Jersey. Across the country at large there will be

Russell Appeal Set

Township Committee has set Tuesday, July 31, at 8 p.m. as the date it will hear the appeal of the Edgerstoune Association of the Planning Board's approval to Springlands Associates of New York City to construct 56 houses on the Russell tract. The appeal will be heard in the Valley Road building, unless the night is very hot, in which case it may be moved to the air-conditioned Township Court over the Police Department.

The residents are appealing the decision primarily on the grounds of the traffic that would result. They claim that an alternative circulation plan they proposed was disregarded. Other factors on which they base their appeal include sewer capacity and whether or not the open space meets the standards applicable to residential clusters.

CAR STOLEN

From PCV Parking Lot. An Alexandria, Virginia, man, visiting friends in Princeton Community Village over the weekend, awoke Saturday morning to discover that his car had been stolen.

Township Police were investigating the disappearance of the 1980 Datsun, which was taken sometime between 7:30 p.m. Friday and 10:15 a.m. Saturday. The car also contained a checkbook with six or seven blank checks, police said.

The victim was identified as Robert P. Russell Jr.

DRIVERS ESCAPE

Without Serious Injuries. The driver and a passenger in a car traveling south on rain-slicked Route 206 last Saturday were taken by ambulance to Princeton Medical Center after their car skidded off the road and crashed into a utility pole.

Township Police reported that Adamantio and Antonia Dimopoulos of New Brunswick suffered cuts and facial injuries in the accident. Neither driver nor passenger was admitted to the hospital, however. The car had to be towed from the scene.

According to police the car failed to negotiate a curve to the left between Edgerstoune Road and Independence Drive. Adamantio Dimopoulos was charged with careless driving.

DRUG CHARGES SET

Against Green Street Man. Borough Police arrested a 24-year-old green Street man last Friday night and charged him with possession of more than 25 grams of marijuana and drug paraphernalia.

Briar Tadlock was arrested at the corner of Lytle and John streets after police observed him holding a plastic, zip-lock bag containing several folded brown envelopes. Police said later that the bag contained 10 envelopes, one plastic bag, a scale, and a substantial amount of money, in addition to marijuana.

Mr. Tadlock was ordered to appear in Borough Court next Wednesday, August 1.

On Thursday night police arrested a 54-year-old Trenton man for possession of less than 25 grams of marijuana. Harold Roque was arrested after making what police called an illegal U-turn on Nassau Street.

He was ordered to appear in court on August 15.

THEFT THWARTED

By U-Store Employee. A would-be shoplifter and his accomplice, who obviously had spent little time preparing for their criminal activity, were being sought by Borough Police following an aborted shoplifting attempt at the University Store last Friday afternoon.

Chief Michael Carnevale reported that an employee of the U-Store noticed a black man in his 30s, about 5 feet 7 inches tall, stuffing sportswear into a canvas bag. The clerk asked the man if she could help him. He dropped the merchandise, valued at $432, and fled from the store.

Several U-Store employees then followed the man and observed him entering a car in the parking lot across the street. Another man was driving and first drove the car right on Edwards Place to a dead end, then up a private driveway, to another dead end, and then back out onto University Place. By that time the employees had recorded the license plate number, which was then forwarded to police.

A Witherspoon Street merchant was less lucky on Monday afternoon. Police said that an employee of the store noticed a man leaving the store with an alarm clock valued at $25.

The employee tried unsuccessfully to follow the man on Witherspoon Street. Police were seeking a black man in his late teens or early 20s, about 5 feet 11 inches, with a thin build.

'Vengeance Is Mine,' Inappropriate As Attitude to Area Traffic Problems

Two people who apparently tried to take the law into their own hands last week ended up in the hands of the law.

An East Windsor man who felt that a bicyclist had scraped the paint on his car responded by taking the front wheel of the bike. The bicyclist, a Princeton Township woman, reported her loss to Borough Police. The man, Paul Caruso, 33, was charged with theft, ordered to appear in court August 15, and "further advised that this was an improper way to handle the incident," according to Police Chief Michael Carnevale.

The incident occurred last Tuesday, July 17, while the bicycle was parked in front of 20 Nassau Street. When the bicyclist returned she discovered the wheel missing and a note attached to the bike telling her whom she could call to retrieve the wheel. Mr. Caruso claimed that $300 in damage had been done to his car. But police referred to the bicyclist as "the victim" and reported that she indicated she was not responsible for any paint damage.

Last Thursday police investigated an assault on Nassau Street at Palmer Square. The victim, a Princeton man in his 50s, and three witnesses told police that the incident resulted from a traffic tie-up. The victim was attempting to turn right from Palmer Square onto Nassau Street. With traffic stopped the driver of a van honked his horn. Both drivers got out of their cars and the van driver executed what Chief Carnevale described as a "flying karate kick" to the head of the other man. The van driver then hit him several times in the head and left the scene.

The victim was treated and released from Princeton Medical Center. The police, armed with the license plate number of the van, arrested Thomas E. Eng, 33, of Stockton. The chief said that Mr. Eng has studied martial arts. He is due in court August 15.

several small fires were discovered last week at Princeton Day School on the Great Road.

Township Captain John Petrone said that someone apparently entered a classroom between 7:30 p.m. last Wednesday, July 18, and 6:30 a.m. the next day and set several small fires using material from the wastebaskets and wall posters. No significant damage resulted.

The previous incidents involved small fires in lavatories.

SEARCH REQUESTED

Defendant Obliges. A woman trucker, stopped after she failed to dim the headlights of her tractor trailer as she passed two Princeton Borough patrolmen, was charged with the illegal possession of a handgun shortly after midnight on Monday.

Police said that Nancy Snowden, 36, of Dover, New Jersey, was traveling south on Route 206 near Lovers Lane when she passed an oncoming patrol car. She was stopped, acted nervous, and was asked if she was carrying any contraband. She said she was not and agreed to sign a consent search form.

As police began their search of her cab she informed them that she had a handgun in the trailer. It was a .25 calibre, semi-automatic, which was fully loaded. The driver was released on $1,500 bail and ordered to appear in court next Wednesday, August 1.

TRASH CANS UPSET

Man Arrested. Borough Police arrested Timothy Kirby, 23, of Long Branch early Tuesday morning after discovering three trash cans overturned and pushed onto Nassau Street between Moore and Chestnut streets.

Police said that Mr. Kirby appeared to be intoxicated. He was charged with disorderly conduct and scheduled to appear in court next Wednesday.

DRIFTER FINED $810

For Campus Crimes. Peter L. Fosky Jr., 39, whose family lives in the Princeton area but who is considered a drifter by University security officials, was fined and ordered to make restitutions totalling $810 last week in Borough Court.

Judge Russell W. Annich Jr. fined Mr. Fosky for criminal mischief, a charge resulting from the breaking of several dormitory windows, and for three counts of criminal trespass — University security officers charged that the defendant has made a habit of spending nights in vacant dormitory rooms.

The judge also suspended a five-day jail sentence for each count.

In other court cases Donald B. Teague, 184 John Street, was fined $35 for disorderly conduct; Woodrow Strano, 118 Birch Avenue, six months probation for possession of marijuana; Michael A. Bender, 36 Markham Road, $45 for illegal possession of alcohol; and David I. Rosenfeld, 234 North Harrison Street, $60 for criminal trespass.

In court last Monday, July 16, Shraddha A. Sampat, 25 Krabs Road, Plainsboro, was fined $25 for failing to possess a driver's license.

KEEP ON BIKIN'

Keep Up with Thieves. Construction equipment once again headed the list of items in this week's theft report, but bicycles continued to be the most popular item on the crooks' take list.

Borough Police reported that more than $800 worth of equipment, including an acetylene welding torch and tank, was stolen from the Princeton Community Housing construction site at 300 Elm Road.

A construction trailer on the site was forcibly entered sometime between 4:15 last Monday, July 16, and 7:20 the next morning. The victim was a Newark construction company.

A Hillsborough man, working at a construction site on State Road in the Township, left his wallet on a patio and left for home without it last Wednesday, July 18. When he returned 45 minutes later the wallet was gone. It contained $100 in cash.

In another Township theft a customer pulled into the Rocky Hill Mobil station at Route 206 and Cherry Valley Road and ordered the attendant to "fill 'er." The bill came to $14 but the motorist claimed he wanted only $4 worth. He paid $3.50 and left the scene. The attendant passed the license number to

No Surcharge Imposed

The New Jersey Division of Motor Vehicles is not imposing an insurance surcharge of $250 a year for three years on motorists who fail to surrender license plates as was erroneously reported in many daily newspapers on July 12 and 13.

The surcharge is only applied to motorists who have been suspended for failing to reply to notices from the Division requesting verification of their liability insurance coverage. Those notices only go out when insurance companies notify DMV that the individual's insurance has been cancelled.

Even then, two notices go to the motorist before any suspension action is taken. A reply to either one of those notices documenting the sale of the vehicle, or the transfer of insurance to another carrier will avert any suspension action.

Annually, the Division receives approximately 200,000 termination notices from insurance companies and eventually suspends 35,000 to 45,000 motorists for failure to verify coverage.

Township Patrolman John Seeley, who was investigating.

Police After Radar. A device that police usually frown on was stolen from a car parked in a Hibben Road driveway last Monday, July 16, between 7:30 and 9 p.m. Borough Police were investigating the disappearance of a radar detector valued at $245.

Among the bicycles reported stolen last week were a men's 12-speed valued at $350 that had been left unlocked in front of a Witherspoon Street estaurant; a bike kept under ock and chain behind 20 Nassau Street; one valued at $50 and left unlocked at the Graduate School; and another one left chained one evening at the Dinky Station — the owner returned to discover the chain had been cut and the bike was gone.

Apply at Bank. Aid is available for students and prospective students of approved post-secondary educational institutions.

Both full- and part-time eligible students in need of aid may qualify for low-interest guaranteed student loans. Part-time students must carry at least one-half the workload of a full-time student.

Nassau Savings is currently accepting loan applications with an interest rate of eight percent for qualified new borrowers. Loans to undergraduates are available for up to $2500 per grade level and up to $5000 per grade level for graduate students.

The Guaranteed Student Loan program is sponsored by the United States Department of Education and the loans are guaranteed by the New Jersey Higher Education Assistance Authority. While the program is government-managed, the loans are actually financed by participating banks through customer deposits.

Loans are interest-free while the student is attending school. Initial loan payments are deferred until six months after graduation, with up to ten years to repay the total loan.

Detailed information is available at Nassau Savings. To set up an appointment to discuss this program, call Mr. Crane at 924-4498.

JOB OUTLOOK BRIGHTER

For N.J. College Seniors. A recent New Jersey Department of Labor survey indicates there is a brighter job outlook this year for graduating New Jersey college seniors, according to State Labor Department Commissioner David Bodman.

While starting salaries showed only modest increases, job offers were reported up from last year's low levels by most of the 14 New Jersey college and university placement offices surveyed by the Department's Division of Planning and Research.

"This is certainly the brightest report we've received in years insofar as our state's college graduates are concerned," said Commissioner Bodman. "It's encouraging to know that our current upward hiring trend is reaching these new entrants into the job market."

According to the survey, there were more employers recruiting on the state's campuses this year, especially from small and mid-sized firms. About 80 percent of all recruiters represented New Jersey firms.

Business major graduates in New Jersey received a significant increase in job offers this year. The demand in New Jersey for accounting, management, and marketing graduates outpaced that for computer science majors and engineers. Although there was some reported improvement, the job market for liberal arts majors is still tight.

Annual starting salaries for business majors averaged $18,000, up from $16,500 in 1983. Starting salaries in computer-related fields averaged $21,500, an increase of $1,800 over last year's figure. Generally, these starting salary offers were slightly below national averages.

Recruiters Selective. While the surveyed New Jersey colleges and universities reported an increase in recruitment and job offers this year, they also noted that recruiters were still very selective. Graduates with high academic performance and prior work experience fared best.

The survey also indicated employer caution in starting salary offers. This stems from: (1) the lack of pressure on companies to raise salaries since inflation is at lower levels; (2) companies taking longer than expected to recover from the 1981-82 recession; (3) companies wishing to retain a leaner work force to increase profitability; (4) students' lower salary expectations based on the experience of last year's graduates and recognition of the large pool of graduates vying for employment.

As students' perceptions of the job market change, there is a shift in the distribution of bachelor degrees awarded by program. From 1977 to 1983, these shifts have been tracked within the state by the New Jersey Department of Higher Education.

Business accounted for 26.2 percent of bachelor degrees in 1983 as opposed to 19.4 percent in 1977. Liberal arts graduates dropped from 35.5 percent in 1977 to 29.5 percent in 1983.

Another drop occurred in education, which represented 15.7 percent of degrees in 1977 and 8.7 percent in 1983. The fast-growing computer sciences field accounted for only 0.4 percent of degrees in 1977 rising to 2.9 percent in 1983.

New Jersey colleges and universities conferred 46,267 formal awards in 1983. Of these 25,622 (55.4 percent) were bachelor degrees, 7,281 (15.7 percent) were masters, and 2,398 (5.2 percent) were doctorates. The remaining 10,966 (23.7 percent) were in one or two-year programs.

NO CONTRACTS YET

With Two Groups. Contracts between the Princeton Regional School Board and groups representing educational secretaries (PRESA) and school aides (PRAides) are still up in the air.

Two July meetings failed to forge contracts acceptable to all parties. Negotiations reached an impasse between the board and PRESA, and a mediator has been called in. September 6 is the target date for the mediator's report. Negotiations are still underway with PRAides.

Contracts have already been ratified between the board and organizations representing Princeton's teachers and maintenance personnel.

NEW COUNSELORS: Don Bahr of Hightstown and Tom Grover of Skillman have been appointed counselors by Andre Gruber, center, Bishop and presiding church officer of the Mormon Church in Princeton. With the Bishop, their responsibilities are to direct the affairs of the church in spiritual and temporal matters.

INTIMACY IS TOPIC

For Workshop for Teens. Princeton Psychological Associates will hold a summer workshop on "Intimacy: Devloping Healthy Relationships with the Opposite Sex" on Tuesday, August 7, from 8-10 p.m.

Sharon R. Powell, a licensed marriage and family therapist and partner in Princeton Psychological Associates, will run the evening session for students between the ages of 16 and 20. According to Dr. Powell, "Young people in their late teens often become frustrated when their expectations in a relationship with the nppsite sex are not met. For some students, dating can be awkward and uncomfortable, while for others, maintaining a close relationship with someone you have been dating for several months can become complicated by feelings of insecurity, jealousy or sexual inadequacy.

Dr. Powell has worked with adolescents in the Princeton community for 15 years as a teacher and counselor and as director of the Peer Leadership Troining Program which she developed at Princeton High School six years ago. She is currently director of the Peer Leadership Program at Princeton Day School.

Students home from college over the summer, or high school juniors and seniors, may enroll in the workshop by calling 683-4180 or 924-0889 to register. There will be a charge of $5 per student to attend. The offices of Princeton Psychological Associates are at 14 Vandeventer Avenue.

ANNUAL GIVING UP

At Princeton University. Princeton University's annual giving program has set a new record by raising more than $13.8 million during the 1983-84 fiscal year.

This is the ninth consecutive year in which a record total has been achieved, according to Director of Annual Giving Joseph L. Bolster Jr. In setting the new mark, the program exceeded its goal by nearly $165,000.

Figures from this year's program, which ended June 30, show that 32,886 alumni and friends of Princeton made contributions totaling $13,814,712. Of Princeton's 40,340 undergraduate alumni, 23, 754 or 58.8 percent participated in the program. This is one of the highest participation rates for annual fund-raising programs among American colleges and universities.

Highlights of the 1983-84 program include the following:

• Of the 13 major reunion classes, 11 set new records for their reunion years. The 40th reunion Class of 1944 raised the largest amount for any class with a $1.5 million total, followed by the 50th reunion Class of 1934 ($1.35 million) and the 25th reunion Class of 1959 ($1.1 million).

• Parents of current and recent undergraduates set a new record for participation, with more than 3,000 donors. Total parent contributions came to $464,479.

o With 1,053 contributors, graduate alumni also set a new participation record in their category, raising $168,964.

o The program received a record $1.8 million from 697 corporations matching gifts by their employees to Princeton.

Those classes not holding major reunions this year also did exceptionally well, according to Bolster. The Class of 1920 led all classes in participation with 93.9 percent (62 of its 66 members) contributing. The Class of 1983, with 793 of its 1,165 members making gifts, established a new high for total participants in a single class.

The $13.8 milion raised by Annual Giving this year represents a more than 10 percent increase over last year's total of $12.4 million.

No Facelift for Fountain.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

Sometimes you go to a bad play or movie and you wonder how they could make it. Surely someone could have told them while it was in the works that it was no good. I feel the same way about the facelift the Collins Corporation has given the Palmer Square fountain.

It may have looked fine on the drawing board, and I can even imagine it maybe 10 times the size with the great Grand Teton Mountains in the background. But the tiny Square's fountain was meant to be a tranquil spot for children, or dogs, and people eating lunch or pausing on a hot, languid day to look at the cool water and the Johnson statue sitting on the fountain's edge. It has instead been turned overnight into a crowded mess of boulders.

More than 20 stones of various lengths choke the small fountain. The dual gurgles of water that poke up from the top of the rocks look lost. And the benches placed in this direction and that nearby are reminiscent of the waiting room in Penn Station, N.Y.

The fountain doesn't go with the kiosk, it doesn't go with the building behind it, and it certainly doesn't go with the architecture or mood of Palmer Square. Who wants to sit on a concrete plaza and look at a jumble of rocks which are totally out of proportion to the fountain which they almost completely hide? If the Square's planners want to see what a lovely fountain looks like, they should take a look at the one in the Woodrow Wilson School courtyard.

One shudders to think of what new idea for beautifying Palmer Square Collins will come up with next. In addition to the fountain, they have built a concrete walkway which seems to be the width of a two-lane highway in front of the Post Office, and planted another of their ubiquitous benches there.

Please, could we keep the Square green, and a place of simple charm? Give the rocks to some zoo for the seals to lie on in a giant pond, or give them back to the highway construction company from which they look as though they came.

Merchant Applauded.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

The following is a copy of a letter to Landau's.

A huge big THANK YOU for your continued interest in and support of the older population of Princeton. Georgine and I have heard such nice comments about your picnic held last Thursday, July 19th at Prospect. Several people took the time to call and tell us how very much they enjoyed the affair, and that it was the highlight of their year.

The number of nursing home guests was the biggest yet — imagine 45 people, the majority of whom don't see the outside world more than a few times a year.

The Senior Olympics which you also so graciously supported with hats and balloons, was also a great success with 49 older adults participating in a wide range of events. Next year we hope to project a more positive image of aging by getting many more older citizens involved.

We are indeed fortunate in Princeton to have merchants like yourselves who really care!

Opera Festival Saluted.
To the Editor of Town Topics:

BRAVO! The Arts Council of Princeton salutes the June Opera Festival of New Jersey on a brilliant first season.

The Board of Trustees and staff of the Festival set a wonderful example of teamwork by enlisting the cooperation and support of many individuals and groups, among which are Merrill Lynch, Lawrenceville School, New Jersey Symphony, Westminster Choir College, McCarter Theatre, and Princeton University.

We are proud that our community met the challenge of supporting the premiere season. We would like to encourage everyone to remember the June Opera Festival during the coming months and to contribute generously to ensure that the second season can continue the standard of excellence demonstrated here this year.

Here's a 4 point program for keeping the slugs in your garden from overwhelming the veggies. You can come to a truce where they won't eat you out of house and home, yet you won't have to kill them yourself. SAND – slugs' skin is only one cell thick, so they emit slime to slide over sharp or unpleasant terrain. Baby slugs, very small, make a very thin layer of slime and are easily discouraged by a texture that wouldn't deter their big fat parents. When peas are planted in early spring, most of the slugs are tiny babies. They don't like to crawl through sharp river sand, but hang out in force in nice soil high in humus.

HIGH NITROGEN FERTILIZER – slugs prefer to eat soft, slightly rotting tissue. When plants are deficient in nitrogen their lower leaves turn yellow and gradually decay. Feed plants a form of readily available nitrogen and they will outgrow mild slug damage.

UNDER COVER. When you set out tender young plants in spring there are the Huns, ready to attack. Give your plants their own fortresses. Take clear plastic two-liter soda bottles, cut off the bottoms, take off the labels and use them as mini cloches for early spinach, lettuce and broccoli. Just be sure all the enemy is on the outside or you'll have very happy slugs.

SLUG PATROL – if all else fails, start an evening slug patrol handpicking from the most heavily infested areas. Some people squish the slugs, others toss them away. Hope this will be helpful to all gardeners and, if you need advice on your trees and shrubs give WOODWINDS 924-3500 a call. We'll be glad to help!

Mount Laurel II Decision Has Created Constitutional Crisis in New Jersey

by Jerome G. Rose

Last year the New Jersey Supreme Court rendered its decision in Southern Burlington County NAACP v. Township of Mount Laurel (Mount Laurel II) in which it provided several remedies to enforce its decision that every municipality in "growth" areas must provide a realistic opportunity for the construction of housing to meet its "fair share" of the low and moderate income housing needed in the "region."

All lawsuits challenging the validity of municipal zoning laws are now heard by three specially appointed judges who have come to be known as the three "housing and zoning czars" of the state.

The Mount Laurel II decision has created a state constitutional crisis because of the usurpation of legislative and executive powers by the New Jersey judiciary and by the blatant disregard by the court of the principles of democracy. The decision encourages developers to challenge alleged exclusionary zoning by the promise of a "builder's remedy."

The standard of zoning validity imposed by the court has been devised so that no municipality has been able to comply. In fact there is not a zoning ordinance in the state of New Jersey that is valid under the requirements of the decision. Once a developer brings suit, there is not very much a defendant municipality can do. As Henry Hill, an attorney who represents developers in several pending Mount Laurel lawsuits has described so colorfully: "In Mount Laurel lawsuits, municipalities are like baby harp seals during the periodic Canadian harp seal hunts; they can slither and bleat; but only for a short time."

"Fair Share" Formula Devised. At the trial, professional planners provide information upon which a judge makes public policy decisions usually reserved to elected legislative officials. A court appointed planner, with the assistance of about 20 planners involved in pending litigation, has delineated the "regions" of the state and has devised a formula to calculate the "fair share" obligation of each municipality in each "region."

After hearing the planning testimony on both sides the judge determines in each case that the zoning is invalid and specifies the number of housing units for low and moderate income persons that must be provided by the municipality. The court then exerts all of its influence to get the parties to settle the case by having the municipality adopt a zoning ordinance that provides for the specified number of low income units.

The municipality is placed under great pressure to settle. The costs of litigation (consisting mostly of attorney and planner fees) are extraordinarily high. The chances of winning an appeal in the state Supreme Court are non-existent; the chances of escaping out of the state court system by an appeal to a federal court are conjectural at the present time.

The most coercive force causing municipal capitulation in Mount Laurel litigation is the threat of the "builder's remedy" by which the judge may authorize a builder-plaintiff to proceed with his proposed development unless the municipality can prove that there is a serious environmental or planning problem.

Flagrant Usurpation of Power. The builder's remedy is a flagrant usurpation by the judiciary of legislative power. Instead of being a passive forum for the resolution of disputes between private parties, the court now seeks to control the entire subject of exclusionary zoning by encouraging, provoking and inciting litigation against municipalities.

Once the issue is in court, housing and land use decisions for the municipality and the state are made by one of the three judges rather than by elected officials. By this technique the court has used the builder's remedy as a device to seize continuing jurisdiction over a contested public policy issue.

The builder's remedy is a flagrant usurpation by the judiciary of the executive power. It puts the Mount Laurel judges in the position of high prestige procurers, who for a price, will permit a developer to have his way with the municipality's land. The price of the municipal subduction is the developer's agreement to provide a substantial number of units to low income persons. After satisfying his desires, the developer will move on to other conquests elsewhere leaving the defendant-municipality and the court to deal with the progeny of financial and administrative problems created by this act of judicial licentiousness.

The municipality will be left with such problems as determining the eligiblity of future occupants of low cost units, achieving and maintaining racial balance, and finding a source of revenue for continuing subsidies to maintain the low cost of the subsidized units, among others. To achieve the Mount Laurel objectives the court will have to maintain continuing jurisdiction. Municipal governance by black-robed administrators is a fearsome prospect for 1984 and beyond in New Jersey.

Propriety of the Judicial Role. The Mount Laurel decision raises serious constitutional questions about the propriety of the judicial role. Elected officials are ordinarily reluctant to get involved in intergovernmental conflicts of this kind. However, the ire of elected officials is beginning to foment in New Jersey.

Legislation has been proposed providing for an 18 month moratorium of Mount Laurel II lawsuits. Legislation is also pending calling for a constitutional amendment to reinstate and reaffirm the supremacy of municipal zoning power. More comprehensive legislation has been proposed calling for the establishment of a state planning commission to revise the State Development Guide Plan and another bill would create a planning mechanism to determine municipal housing needs and restore the presumption of validity for municipalities whose land use regulations have been certified.

But interparty conflicts have thus far prevented the state legislature from facing up to its responsibility. In the meantime fearful municipal officials are relinquishing their authority and mandate to the judicial zoning czars.

Mr. Rose is a professor of urban planning at Livingston College, Rutgers University and the author of several articles on the Mt. Laurel decision. He is a former member of the Princeton Regional Planning Board.

Penick Proposal

Mrs. Penick told Committee that one advantage to the new proposal is that it gives control of the program to the Township, whereas the ordinance that has been introduced gives control to the developers. Moreover, she said, all it would take would be six, or eight or 10 landowners setting aside 20 percent of their development for low and moderate income units. "Better than watching a bunch of sharks circling in for the kill," she observed.

She warned that there will always be someone who opposes a certain site, even in a large lot program, but said that she thought the proposal a better option than the overlay approach of the present ordinance. There might even be suitable small lots, she suggested, and pointed out the "orderly public process" that would take place if the trust comes in to apply for a variance for such a lot, while not permitting a "free-for-all" to take place. "The trust should be our favored developer," she commented.

Mrs. Penick pointed out that the burden of the density bonus plan falls not on the developer but on new people moving into town, or the family who wants to buy a new house. She believes "everybody ought to pay" and supports contributions from developers of all new construction. At five percent of construction costs, potential building in the undeveloped OR zone and in a redeveloped service zone could yield $3 to the trust, she estimates.

Important in Make Start. "The important thing is for the Township to say 'we've made a start on a plan that is producing housing,' " Mrs. Penick remarked. She encouraged Township Committee to be innovative and to try out ideas, such as requiring contributions from commercial as well as residential development, even though such an alternative is not specifically spelled out by the Mount Laurel II decision.

Mayor Winthrop S. Pike said the proposal represents a "possible compromise" and he was "delighted to see the Planning Board take the initiative." Committeewoman Gail Firestone was even more enthusiastic.

"I am very encouraged by these suggestions," she said. "It is an interesting and exciting effort. It doesn't put the whole responsibility on the taxpayer, it doesn't put the whole responsibility on increased density."

After the open meeting, Township Committee went into closed session to hear comments from Jerome Rose, professor of urban planning who has strong views on the constitutionality of Mount Laurel II, on strategies for handling the two suits presently before the Township. Mayor Pike reported later that the session, lasting an hour and a half, was "on the whole, positive."

Out of the meeting came the suggestion that the Township prepare a statement setting forth its policy on affordable housing, the record over the years of units in place, and its hope to produce more such units in a multi-faceted approach. The statement will also contain reference to the fact that the University, the largest employer in town, rents many units at below market figures.

Mayor Pike said that Attorney Edwin W. Schmierer would prepare the statement with the help of members of the Planning Board and Township Committee. The mayor hopes to have the statement ready by Tuesday, July 31, when Township Committee meets to hear a citizens' appeal on the Planning Board approval of the Russell tract subdivision.

man of the Regional Planning Board and a columnist who has himself interviewed planners on this topic in surrounding municipalities. Mr. Sayen, a longtime Township resident who now lives in the Borough, stressed the fact that the problem is enormous, with roots that go way back, and that there is no simple answer.

Concerned About Numbers. He is deeply concerned, as are many residents, how the municipalities will cope with the numbers of units that will be generated if, in the suggested 20 percent set aside approach, four units for the rich are built to every one for the poor. He believes that Judge Serpentelli, the judge assigned to Mount Laurel disputes in this area, is a "man with a mission who wants it done in a hurry."

However, he sees some interesting possibilities in various plans being put forth as other levels of state and county government begin to wake up to the problem. He would urge citizens to support Senate bill 1416 proposed by Gerald Stockman which would create a statewide commission with oversight over the State Development Guide Plan.

Combined Effort. Mr. Sayen would also upgrade the county planning board so that municipalities would have confidence in working with the county and with the state as "proper buttressing in the courts." Otherwise, he says, the municipalities will be "picked off one by one," in the settling of suits brought by developers.

Having met and listened to Judge Serpentelli, he believes him to be "a very reasonable guy." He suggests Princeton should put together an "amalgam" of ways to provide low and moderate income housing and "run it past" the judge, saying this is how the town proposes to change the affordable housing situation in five years time. Density bonus alone is "anathema," Mr. Sayen observes. "We are going to have to rehab some units, bond some, but it should not be four-for-one. I don't think the infrastructure can stand it."

Former Township Mayor James Floyd, on the other hand, is impatient with all the talk of alternate plans. "I can't understand it," he says. "You don't abrogate what has been handed down. I can't understand that kind of defiance by folk sworn to adhere to the constitution.

"We live under a system of cascading responsibilities that has to be recognized. We've got to find a way to comply with the law, to do what we've been mandated to do. So far we've made every effort to stall." He thinks it is "reprehensible" that now that the court ruling is here, people are "finding ways not to comply. It's so ridiculous," Mr. Floyd says. "We're just talking about people and homes. Not some scourge. What is this fear of some horde?"

PCV Experience. From her experience as head of Princeton Community Housing, Harriet Bryan contributes some figures that highlight how difficult it is for low income residents to meet even subsidized housing costs. An individual earning $5 an hour, working a 40 hour week, makes $10,400 a year — before taxes, social security, medical deductions. The federal government suggests paying no more than 30 percent of income in housing, which for this individual would amount to $3,120 a year or $260 a month.

The basic rent for a one bedroom apartment at Princeton Community Village is $272, including utilities. Market rental for a one bedroom apartment she figures is $450. Someone who works at the Medical Center for $4 an hour and has two children is turned down by PCV because that person can't afford the rent. And yet, she says, restaurant and laundry workers are generally paid minimum wage, $3.35, earning $6,968 a year.

Mrs. Bryan believes the town can come up with more innovative approaches than letting a builder put 1200 units in a farmer's field far from public transportation and other facilities. She refers to the Calton Homes suit which seeks to put that many units, 20 percent of them reserved for low and moderate income purposes, on the 120-acre White Farm off Mercer Street.

She is opposed to a bond issue because it would raise taxes, and that, as much as the lack of affordable housing, drives low income people away, she points out. Mrs. Bryan thinks the town should find a few pieces of land at a lower price ("I know that is not easy, but it can be done") on which housing at a higher density and perhaps of modular construction to help cut costs would be built.

She also supports the conversion of some of the big older homes in town and the building of "little granny houses" in small lot back yards. "Isn't that better than using up all the open space?" she asks.

Mrs. Bryan would like to see the Shopping Center used for this purpose. Land there was not available when Princeton Community Housing was looking for a site for the 100 units for the elderly that are presently under construction off Elm Road. At the time, the owner of the Shopping Center had died, and the estate was in the process of being settled, she said. The property has since been purchased from the estate by a new owner.

It will take a combination of lower land costs, lower construction costs, lower development costs (requirements for curbs and other items) and higher density to produce the affordable housing mix that Princeton needs, Mrs. Bryan thinks. In terms of density, she likes to point out that Stanworth was built at 11.5 units per acre and "most people don't think that's so bad." The 2.75 units per acre under discussion won't be enough, she thinks.

In addition to higher density and lower land, construction and development costs, Mrs. Bryan hopes the banks and lending institutions in town will join in the effort by making lower mortgages available. "It is going to take a combination of everything together," she says.

Direct Financing. Abbot Low Moffat, a former Township Committeeman who has a distinguished record as a public servant on national and state levels, is very concerned about the density problem. Not wholly convinced that the Township will in fact have to build 700 or 800 units of low and moderate income housing, he believes that if it does, the municipality should finance the construction directly rather than "by selling density." "It will be cheaper in the long run," he says.

In addition, he thinks the municipality itself should issue the bonds, rather than a housing trust or other organization, because ultimately the Township is responsible. Moreover the Township would obtain a better rate than some other agency, he thinks.

Another former Township Committeeman also had two recommendations to make, but preferred to make them anonymously. He felt that if it is necessary to set a number for the fair share obligation, the municipality should set that number without waiting for the judicial process. "Whether right or wrong, they should set it. The primary responsibility is not Judge Serpentelli's; it's Princeton Township's," he said.

He also expressed "grave doubts" about "saddling the sole responsiblity" on people who own undeveloped land. The responsibility should fall equally on people who own developed land, i.e. taxpayers, he said.

Meanwhile, neighboring West Windsor and Lawrence Townships are in the process of settling "builder's remedy" suits that will bring thousands of additional units, both market and low and moderate income, into those municipalities. In Plainsboro, some Forrestal Village residents may have to move because their incomes are above the low and moderate income level. Many did not know when they moved in that 20 percent of the 600 units in the Center were intended to be set aside for low and moderate income housing in an agreement with Princeton University at the time the Center was built in 1975.

If the summer of 1984 is remembered for nothing else, it will be remembered as the summer of the struggle brought on by Mount Laurel.

Route 92

According to Mr. Glasberg, the agreement between the DOT and Larken Corp. is similar to that between the DOT and Calton Homes in that in each instance a strip of land has been set aside by the developer to site the highway on the edge of the development rather than through the middle. The 14 acres deeded by Calton Homes apparently lines up with that deeded by Larken, and Mr. Glasberg feels the new agreement will greatly facilitate the alignment of the highway along the Princeton-Montgomery border.

This is the "straddle" alignment which residents and Princeton Township officials oppose because of the costs and ecological damage involved in blasting the road through the top of the ridge. In addition, this alignment would eliminate one Herrontown Circle residence and impact three others. It would also cut a swath from Autumn Hill reservation, a passive recreation area purchased with Green Acres funds.

Mr. Glasberg points out that at the public meeting last March at which the DOT revealed which alternatives it would continue to assess and which it had eliminated, there were four possibilities of alignment in the vicinity of the Princeton-Montgomery border. On the map prepared by the DOT they are called Princeton-Montgomery "shifts" — four alternate ways to get from Route 27 in the vicinity of Raymond Road to Route 206 in the vicinity of Cherry Valley Road.

Northern Route Best. According to Mr. Glasberg, the northernmost route, which would loop around Montgomery Woods, the Calton Homes' development, before swinging back to the Princeton border almost at Route 206, is the route he prefers. It is the one that would do the least ecological and social harm, he feels.

In frequent telephone contact with DOT officials throughout the past year, he thought there was "a fairly good chance" that this northern loop would be favored. He was worried, however, by the DOT announcement that the environmental impact studies would not be complete until December, 1985, for he knew there was a great deal of development pressure in that area of Montgomery Township. In fact, the area is designated in the the Montgomery master plan for high density development.

Mr. Glasberg scheduled a meeting of area residents at his house this Wednesday to discuss ways of arousing the public to the issue. Mayor Pike agreed to attend. "We cannot wait 18 months (until the environmental impact studies are complete and a route selected) to get this situation resolved," Mr. Glasberg says.

"If we wait 18 months it will be too late. We must get the state to acquire the land now in order to spare the park land (Autumn Hill Reservation) and our homes. It will also save the state millions of dollars. We have an issue here that is ecological and social and has financial implications for every taxpayer."

Lest he be accused simply of not wanting a road in his backyard he adds quietly but emphatically, "The highway really doesn't belong up on that ridge. If it did, I wouldn't go to all this trouble, I would accept it. But there are bigger issues at stake than whether a highway goes by my house."

Kay Bretnall Honored

In appreciation of the many years of outstanding reporting of affairs of the Borough and Township by Kay Bretnall, a group of citizens will dedicate a tree in her honor. Detailed, accurate, informative, intelligent, emphathetic — these are some of the adjectives which have been used to describe her news and feature articles.

The type of tree has not yet been decided, but it will be planted at the west end of the mini-park in front of TOWN TOPICS, and will have an identifying plaque. The donors will be an anonymous group. The Shade Tree Commission has approved the project as a replacement for a tree now in place which is dying.

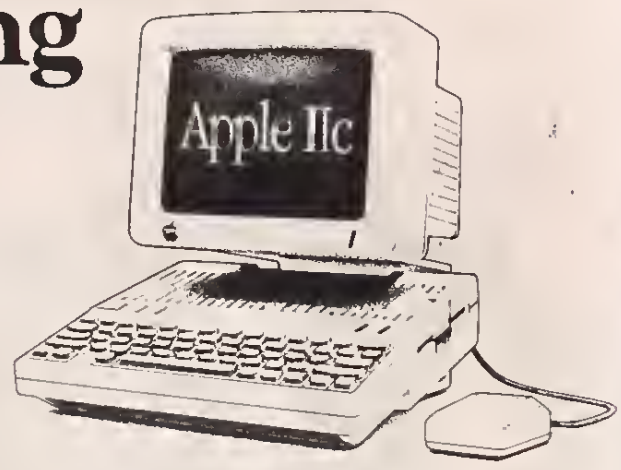
Announcing a drastic reduction on the Apple IIe.



Now the world's most popular personal computer comes in a new size: extra small.

Introducing the Apple® IIc Personal Computer. It's a serious computer about as big as a notebook.

By serious, we mean 128K RAM, a full-size keyboard, and all the reliability of the Apple IIe.

It can run literally thousands of the same programs. For business, education, home management, and just plain fun.

Its svelte 7½ pound body houses a built-in disk drive and built-in electronics for printers and modems.

And the IIc comes with everything you need to start computing. Including an RF modulator that turns your TV into a monitor, a power pack and a free 4-disk tutorial.

Of course, there are still lots of reasons to take home an Apple IIe. Like its ability to grow with more peripherals and accessories than any other computer in the world.

Our professional sales staff will help you make the right choice.

They'll also help you apply for an Apple Credit Card. If you qualify, you can take either Apple II home for as little as 10% down.

Which can prevent a drastic reduction in something else. Your cash flow.

LAWRENCEVILLE

This picturesque and historic stone house dates from 1760 but has been tastefully updated and enlarged while retaining all the charm of antiquity. A through center hall leads to well proportioned living room, dining room, study and modernized kitchen, all with fireplaces. A more recent addition contains a sitting room with doors to a flagstone terrace, wet bar alcove with counters, dishwasher, and sink; a bedroom and full bath. Upstairs there are three bedrooms, a study, all with fireplaces, and two baths on the second floor plus two more bedrooms and bath on the third floor. Wide pine floors, fine woodwork and hardware. All recently decorated and in beautiful shape. Stone patios, outbuildings, inground Sylvan pool, 2.49 acres.

WEST WINDSOR

This five bedroom home near schools and train shares all our wishes for sunny days when the pool in the large fenced backyard can be enjoyed and, if necessary, the air conditioning can keep the inside comfortable. A living room, dining room, eat-in kitchen, family room with fireplace, bedroom or study, half bath and laundry are on the first floor. Upstairs there are three bedrooms, a full bath, and a master bedroom suite which includes an extra large closet, dressing area, and tile shower bath. A two-car attached garage, a full dry basement and some very nice carpeting add even more to this desirable property. Reduced $187,500

IN HISTORIC GRIGGSTOWN

Near the Canal is an early 1700's farmhouse with later additions. A wide front to back hallway separates the living room and study from the dining room and kitchen. Six bedrooms, three full baths, new bathrooms, a fully floored attic, a flagstone terrace 20 x 70, three fireplaces and handsome wood moldings. This gem could house a large family.

MARCEL BREUER...IN PRINCETON NEED WE SAY MORE?

Yes, we must because while the master architect put his very special stamp on the basic house, it took two very special people, new to our area, but totally involved in the Breuer philosophy, to take this MOMA house a step beyond! Given the totally secluded spot of almost five acres, they added on, they enlarged, they enlivened -- and to this discerning eye, they even improved! The outdoors come in! The artwork is nature itself, in every season, extremely brilliant while at the same time, very restful. The house must be seen. It is really splendid. Do call Peggy Hughes for the particulars!

Rabbi Brings Fresh and Feminist Viewpoint To Jewish Community Center in Belle Mead

"Having a congregation that is morally responsible, lusty, religiously knowledgeable, very participatory — there for each other in times of grief and joy."

These are the words — amounting to a creed, to use a Christian term — of the new rabbi at the new Jewish Community Center of Belle Mead.

Actually, neither are brand new. Susan Schnur served as rabbi on a part time basis as the congregation was forming two years ago. Ms. Schnur and her lawyer husband, Leonard Fishman, are the parents of a two-year-old son, Lincoln, and she took time out for writing and mothering.

Susan Schnur, Rabbi

But now she is back, in a full, half-time capacity, and something of a rarity, for of the relatively few women in the rabbinate, only a small percentage serve in the pulpit. The majority go into non-authoritarian roles as assistants or teachers.

As a spiritual leader who stresses egalitarianism and social action, and who mixes the traditional and the unorthodox, Susan Schnur seems to be ideally suited for the humanistic congregation that meets the first Friday of the month in Montgomery's Burnt Hill School.

The Jewish Community Center of Belle Mead has grown from a meeting of four people who were looking for a way to reunite with their Jewish heritage to a community of some 30-40 families. Ms. Schnur describes it as a grass roots organization, with "people making all the decisions, as opposed to having someone on high making them. "The point of religion," she believes, "is to serve people, rather than people serving religion. It comes from the bottom up, not from the top down."

Ms. Schnur is a slim, voluble young woman of 33 with short dark hair and intelligent hazel eyes framed in glasses. As she speaks, emphasizing certain points, she exudes enthusiasm and empathy, and her round face breaks frequently into smiles and giggles. Daughter of a Trenton radiologist and a social worker, she grew up in a strongly committed, orthodox Jewish family.

Two Cultures. As a student at Princeton Day School, she early felt the tug of two worlds — one, the predominately (at that time) WASP private school of which she was elected president her senior year, the other a "whole other world" of her Jewish background. The experience made her "obsessed with people of two cultures," she says, and much of her work, both within the congregation and outside of it, is with the unaffiliated and with interfaith couples.

Graduating from PDS in 1969, Ms. Schnur went to Barnard where she majored in writing. During a term at Antioch College, she met her future husband, Leonard Fishman, to whom she was married in 1976. Mr. Fishman practices law in a Trenton law firm and is interested in politics; he ran Jeff Laurenti's recent bid for Congress.

After a stint with Harper & Row publishers in New York City, including a year as a free-lance editor, Ms. Schnur earned a graduate degree in the writing program at Johns Hopkins. Some of those courses counted for credit when she enrolled at the Reconstructionist Rabbinical College in Phitadelphia, from which she was ordained a rabbi in 1982.

"The religious appeal is the child in me," she says, acknowledging that she did not know at what moment she decided to become a rabbi. She remembers as a child going to synagogue with her grandfather and feeling the security in knowing that adults were doing the same thing week after week. "There was something mesmerizing and at the same time very comforting about that," she recalls.

Life Cycle Events. Although her parents are orthodox, and consider her a left-wing liberal in a religious sense, they have been very supportive, she says. And when her grandmother died, they looked to her to fulfill the traditional rabbinical role. It is in these moments of passage that religious tradition is at its most meaningful, Ms. Schnur believes, and where she feels she can be of the greatest usefulness.

"Jews sometimes think they have outgrown their need for their Jewish heritage," she remarks, "but there is something about that heritage that makes a person feel the need for it, even 25 years later. There is also an awareness in people that as Jews they are socialized to do things differently. We are programmed to do certain things as a community."

Ms. Schnur would reinforce that sense of community, particularly at the time of death. She feels it is a matter of education, becoming retaught in time-honored practices such as calling at the home and bringing food, but she wants to bring her congregation along to a point that they know reflexively what to do when somebody dies.

Taking seriously the teaching that no one should make a profit out of death, she would extend this, ideally, to having the community make all the funeral arrangements, including the simple wooden

Milton Lyon Directs a Spectacular 'Music Man' at Rider College Center

PROFESSOR HAROLD HILL (played by John Watson Stewart) shows Marion the Librarian (Derry Light) a few steps in a lively production of "The Music Men" at Rider College's Fine Arts Center. A presentation of a new theatre company, Backstage Breaks, the musical is directed by Milton Lyon and will have its final performances this weekend.

Dum da dum da dum da dum da dum. Crash! Boom!

"Seventy-Six Trombones ...," well, it almost seemed like 76, even if there was only one. Anyway, "76 trombones led the big parade" ... and what a parade it is: of talent, energy, inspired dancing and great fun at Rider College's Fine Arts Center.

With final performances July 26-28, The Music Mon is once more mesmerizing audiences, this time as part of an exciting series presented by Backstage Breaks. The newly formed local theatre company has hired veteran stage and television director Milton Lyon to polish Meredith Wilson's musical comedy hit. Believe me, Lyon has created a production that shines like the bell of Winthrop's brand new cornet.

A Fetching Marion. Derry Light (Marion the Librarian) is more than fetching, with this delicious blend of Puritanism and sensuality. (Pick-a-little, talk-a-little, pick-a-little, talk-a-little, cheep-cheep-cheep, talk-a-lot, pick-a-little more.) She's beautiful, and has a fine soprano voice, and hasn't got a friend in this town, so they say at the beginning. But she's sure got them at the end.

The Duncans — Stuart and

News of The THEATRES

You can bicker, you can talk, you can bicker, you can talk, you can talk-talk-talk-talk, bicker-bicker-bicker ... but you won't find a more delightfully upbeat evening anywhere. You can talk all you want to, but you've got to know the territory, and there's no question that Lyon does. His cast is well-oiled and tremendously appealing, with an exuberance that rolls over minor obstacles like lack of experience or creaking stage mechanicals or occasional missed cues without a pause. Hey! We like ya!

John Watson Stewart, in Robert Preston's classic role as Professor Harold Hill, is as engaging a con man as one could handle on a hot summer night. Gentleman, hold onto your ... ladies. When the man dances (or acts or sings or whistles or whatever) — Why, certainly, boys, what else? The piper pays him! YESSIR. YESSIR. YESSIR. Stewart flirts and twirls and twinkles and just generally commandeers the stage with his irrepressible good looks and style.

'Say Goodnight, Gracie' Is a Warm and Funny Look At 60's Generation by Princeton Summer Theatre

"STAY MELLOW AND HANG LOOSE" is the goal of Jerry (Tom Mournier), Steve (Brian Grady), and Ginny (Suzanne Dawson) in "Say Goodnight, Gracie." Ralph Pape's comedy about the first generation raised entirely on television will be presented this weekend by Princeton Summer Theatre in Murray Theatre on the university campus. Call 452-4950 for reservations.

Militant optimists in the 60's, how do they feel ten years later — an actor, Jerry, with a string of failed auditions; a writer, Steve, inventor of wonderful tall tales about his friends, who has sold no poetry, no stories or novels; a secretary, Ginny, who laid aside her dreams in order to make a living; a rock star, Bobby, who watched his friends go to college while he "stayed in Jersey to rot"? They are gathered in Jerry's East Village apartment before going to a high school 10th reunion. Bobby has brought his girl of a year, Catherine, an airplane stewardess. They don't get to the reunion. They talk, they smoke, they joke, they quarrel. They look back over their lives, they are almost 30 years old.

And they give the audience a warm and wonderful evening in the theatre. The play is "Say Goodnight, Gracie" by Ralph Pape. It is the third production of the Princeton Summer Theatre. It will be performed again at Murray Theatre on the University campus this Thursday, Friday and Saturday at 8 and Sunday at 4:30.

These five young people have problems. But the result is a very funny play. Not a witty play, no one-liners. But genuine humor that grows out of the characters themselves and the way they talk to each other. Thank playwright Pape for his inventive characterizations and his memory of what it was like to grow up unsuccessful around 1976.

Equally, though, thank the astute direction of Meg Patterson. The whole production is marvelously natural. Watch the subtle changes from the slight constraint when all five first come together; through the mellowing process as reminiscences and a cigarette passed from hand to hand begin to relax them; to the semi-stoned stage when feelings are freed and thoughts come out of hiding. The bodies react the same; they go where they are most comfortable, on the floor, recumbent on chair arms, eyes shut or half closed. This is lovely directing — the art that hides the use of art.

Interplay of Characters. Though there is little conventional plot, both drama and humor come out of the interplay of these five so different people.

For Jerry (Tom Mounier) and Ginny (Suzanne Dawson) the apartment is home. Life seems a shade more serious for them than for their three friends. For Jerry make it two shades, as he has just been firmly turned down for another acting part, and he has also, as he confesses later, lost his steady job. He can't face going to a reunion where the inevitable question from everybody will be, "How's it going, Jerry?" Except for an over-histrionic bit at the beginning over a can of chunky turky soup, Mounier's performance is strong and sincere.

Miss Dawson is very appealing as Ginny. In a glowing performance there are many high points, such as her awkward embarrassment at being caught unprepared by the arrival of Bobby and his girl friend, or her eager telling of how her mother taught her not to be afraid of the dark.

Brian Grady has fun with the part of Steve. Instead of moping over failures, he hides the hurt with gentle clowning. His gorilla mask, his imitation of Jerry's calisthenics, his exaggerated stories and unexpected quips are consistent parts of a sympathetic character. More than just amusing, he can be genuinely touching.

As Bobby, the uncertain rock star, Brian Jennings brings infectious energy to the play. The nervous force of his friendly humor is only a few steps removed from the emotional explosion which electrifies part of the second act, and which softens into the wonderfully characteristic question he puts to Steve as the play closes.

Carrie Kidd is fascinating as Catherine, the stewardess. At first she mainly listens as she tries to take the measure of Bobby's friends. When she opens up, however, we have a ball. Who will ever forget the vivid recital of how the Cuban

The Music Man

Petic off-stage, and Mayor Shinn and Eulalie Mackecknie Shinn on-stage — play Mr. Malaprop and Ms. Maladroit to their respective T's. The audience loved them.

Supporting roles were splendidly cast. C. Peter Kauzmann as Marcellus, Joseph Saponaro as Tommy, and Susan Guerrera as Ethel deserve some special mention, as do the half-pint starts: Eddie Hughes as Winthrop and Megan McCrudden as Amaryllis. Gary, Indiana became everybodys favorite town when Eddie introduced us, and the duet with Derry and Megan of "Goodnight, My Someone" was a precious little moment.

Pace was excellent, and the dancing — well, the dancing was dynamite. Nancy Thiel has choreographed a series of complex and stylish numbers, with a happy penchant for light-hearted and light-footed humor. "Shipoopi" had to be the audience's downright downhome favorite.

Tuneful Quartet. Add to all that a tuneful barbershop quartet, bright-eyed and beautiful kids, and a stageful of smiles — never mind the market or the lawn or the trade deficit or Central America for an evening — and you're in for a fine time.

Professor Lyon (don't we call music directors "professors" out of respect?) has taken the show to heart. It's Milton, the real music man, who holds the production together from the pit. He drives the orchestra with precision and care. (as one commuting instrumentalist was heard to comment: "I'd go anywhere to play for a director who smiles!") And the whole evening is a testament to the man who believes that singing must be a joy.

Dum da dum da dum da dum da dum. Crash! Boom! Everybody's having fun at Rider. Tickets are available at Cox's Store on Nassau Street in Princeton. Information may be obtained by calling Backstage Breaks at 921-8542.

"Say Goodnight"

Marvelous Set. One can start enjoying the play even before it begins. The set designed by Robert Greenberg is marvelous. The longer you look at it the more fun it is to explore, and the happier you are that you don't have to live in it. A shabby-serviceable kitchen-living room with exposed pipes along the ceiling, two plain windows opening to a practical fire escape in a brick-bordered back yard, the whole area cluttered with necessary as well as useless domestic items, including a mini-bathtub in a corner — the place tells you something about Jerry and Ginny's lives before you meet them.

Taivin Wilks and Dana Levinson must have scoured the flea markets to furnish that room. Bill Burd's lighting is unobtrusive and right. The costumes by Noel Fairbrothers are in character, especially the statuesque pajama suit worn by Catherine (out of Fredericks of Hollywood) and Bobby's snazzy ensemble (out of the Salvation Army).

In case my message has not been clear, this is a very enjoyable show. It has some four-letter words (perhaps nowadays that isn't necessary to mention) but they belong to the people who use them as truly as does any empty can in the kitchen sink.

"Say Goodnight,Gracie" is entertainment, not a problem-solver. It is recommended. To reserve tickets, call the box office number 452-4950.

NAZI GERMANY FOCUS

Of Two Films at Kresge. Two films which share the common elements of a theatrical story set in a world influenced by the rise of Nazi Germany make up Summer Cinema's double-feature at Kresge Auditorium this Wednesday, July 25, through Sunday, July 29.

The two are The Last Metro, showing at 7:30, and Mephisto, at 9:45 each night.

Francois Truffaut's The Last Metro focuses on a small theatre company trying to operate in German-occupied Paris during World War II. The theatre's Jewish director has quite literally "gone underground," to a secret apartment beneath the theatre's stage, from which he listens to rehearsals and directs a new production by giving notes to his actress wife (Catherine Deneuve).

The film's story is how she copes with a new leading man who is involved with the resistance (Gerard Depardieu) as well as with the play itself, its cast and crew, her husband's constant peril, and the movie's villain, a theatre critic who is also a Nazi collaborator. Truffaut offers a penetrating view of how people survive and make do in times of stress, how they rise and fall to occasions and adjust their principles as necessity dictates.

Winner of the 1982 Academy Award as the year's Best Foreign Language Film, Istvan Szabo's Mephisto is based on the 1936 novel of the same name by Klaus Mann. Its subject is an actor's gradual betrayal of political and moral principle in return for professional advancement in pre-war Nazi Germany. In the title role, Austrian actor Klaus Maria Brandauer gives a manic, success-obsessed portrait of an actor's soul as he claws his way from a regional stage in Hamburg to directorship of the state theatre in Hitler's Berlin.

As his actions become more repellent, Brandauer comes to realize he has sold his soul to the devil, the very role that, as an actor, he is best known for playing.

Tickets for Summer Cinema are $3.50 and may be purchased at the door of Kresge Auditorium. For more information call McCarter Theatre at 452-4242.

CLASS TAKES THE STAGE

At McCarter Theatre. "King Kong King Kong," an original show biz farce, will be given this Friday, July 27, on the stage at McCarter Theatre by one of the summer classes of Creative Theatre Unlimited.

The project performance, about amusing auditions and antics in a zany movie studio where a musical version of King Kong is being attempted, will have two performances, at 3:30 p.m. and 7 p.m. Admission is free.

The authors-actors-designers are fifth through eighth graders. After exploring the essentials of classic slapstick and vaudeville humor, the students have created their own production through the creative drama techniques of improvisation and collaborative teamwork.

Cast members are James Bronson, Manoush Zomorodi, Brian Hsiang, Scott Nielsen, Jonathon and Debra Solomon, Mark DuMars Wartenburg, and Justine Schiro all of Princeton. Also Tamara Meade of Pennington; Tonya Lugin, Franklin Park; Alissa MacMillan, East Windsor; Trygve Van Tongeren, Hopewell; Jacqueline Schlosberg, Bridgewater; and Sonji Robinson, Luddy Iezzo and Sonjo Milton of Trenton.

The instructors are Pam Hoffman, creative drama teacher and director of CTU's professional touring performance troupe, assisted by two interns, Alex DeVore from Princeton University and Merrill Altburg of Rutgers University.

NUCLEAR TOPICS

In Classic Film Series. "Dr. Strangelove or: How I Learned to Stop Worrying and Love the Bomb" will be the first film in a series of classics concerned with the dangers of nuclear war.

The series, sponsored by the Coalition for Nuclear Disarmament, will begin on Thursday, July 26 at 8, and continue for four consecutive Thursdays.

"Dr. Strangelove," Stanley Kubrick's 1964 film starring Peter Sellers and George C. Scott, is a biting yet funny satire of how the things we rely on to prevent war may be the very ones that lead to nuclear destruction.

Subsequent films in the series will include "On the Beach," "Fail Safe," and "Missiles of October," on August 2nd, 9th, and 16th respectively. All films will be shown in the main auditorium of the Arts Council building at the corner of Witherspoon Street and Paul Roheson Place, diagonally across from the public library.

The audience should enter through the Green Street doors. All films will begin at 8 p.m. There is no admission charge, but a $2 contribution is requested of those attending.

Miss Bronstein and Mrs. Lehrer will present three major works. The program will open with Mozart's Sonata in D Major. This will be followed by the Sonata of Harold Zabrack, a concert pianist, composer and Choir College faculty member who has had compositions premiered on four continents.

Ena Bronstein

Phyllis A. Lehrer

The evening will conclude with the Schumann Andante and Variations in a scoring for two pianos, two cellos and French horn. Also performing will be Claire Holland, cello; Claudia Stoy, cello, and Richard Rosolino, French horn, all members of the Westminster Conservatory faculty.

Ena Bronstein is a prolific performer who has enjoyed a world-wide concert career. A native of Chile, Miss Bronstein made her South American debut in 1958, touring her native country and winning a national competition which enabled her to travel to New York to study with Claudio Arrau. She made her New York debut in 1961.

Miss Bronstein's chamber music performances have included appearances with violinist Jaime Laredo and the Guarneri Quartet. She is on the faculty of both Westminster Choir College and Westminster Conservatory.

Phyllis Alpert Lehrer has given concerts extensively both as a soloist and as a chamber artist in the United States and in Great Britain. Band members include George Kilby, lead vocal and guitar; Sam Johnson, piano, harp, organ, vocal; Dave "Stubbs" Orr, bass, vocal; and Sharif Hamdan, drums. At the end of the summer the band will begin a two-week tour to places such as Pittsburgh, Chicago and the Worlds Fair in New Orleans.

RECITAL PLANNED

By Pianist, Cellist. The final summer recital at Westminster Choir College will be held Wednesday, August 1, when cellist Dorothy Bishop and pianist Rena Fruchter will play works by Britten, Beethoven, Mendelssohn, Bell and De Falla.

Cellist Dorothy Bishop is a member of the Allegra String Quartet, which gave more than 50 concerts in the last year. A graduate of Brandeis University, she teaches cello and chamber music in association with Mount Royal College and its Academy for gifted students.

Pianist Rena Fruchter is an active soloist and ensemble player, who has performed throughout the United States and abroad and has appeared with the Philadelphia Orchestra. As harpsichordist she has played with the London Chamber Orchestra and other chamber ensembles and is resident harpsichordist of the New York Virtuosi.

The recital closes the 1984 summer season at Westminster. The fall schedule of free recitals, concerts and musical events will begin in September. A complete listing is available by calling 921-3202. The schedule will be mailed in September.

Here's an amazing baseball oddity ... The man who hurled THE best pitched game in big league history, incredibly, wound up as the losing pitcher in that game! ... On May 26, 1959, Harvey Haddix pitched a perfect game — allowing no one on base — for 12 INNINGS (the only time in major league history anybody ever did that) ... He retired 36 consecutive batters, an all-time record for one game — but his own team didn't score and he lost the game in the 13th inning ... Thus the greatest-ever pitching performance resulted in a loss!

How many holes of golf can you play in one day? ... The all-time record was set by Ian Colston of Australia in 1971, when he played — on a regulation course, holing out on each hole — a total of 401 holes in 24 hours!

Three cheers for the RED, WHITE, AND BLUE — and S.D.&B.'s claim service.

Although most major league baseball managers are former players, it's surprising that the two most successful managers in history NEVER played in the big leagues ... The two managers with the highest lifetime percentage of games won — Joe McCarthy and Earl Weaver — never played an inning of major league ball.

CORN STILL PERFECT

In Women's Softball. The Sweet Jersey Corn women's softball team finally gave up a few runs last week — after four straight shutout victories — but it still managed to retain its perfect record in league play with two victories while adding five more wins in a weekend tournament that qualifies Corn for a Labor Day tourney in Cincinnati, Ohio.

Corn raised its league-leading record to 20-0 with an 8-1 defeat of Chambersburg Eyeglass Center and a 8-2 triumph over Grove Plumbing.

Doreen Ragazzo (3-for-3 with a triple), Donna Nicholson (2-for-2 with a homer), Beth Muzyka (2-for-3, triple), and winning pitcher Clare Baxter (2-for-3) powered the Corn against Chambersburg.

Louann Slocum-Robidoux got married on Tuesday and pitched on Thursday against Grove. She earned the victory, with relief help from Baxter. Corn hitters included Dee Discavage (2-for-3, double), and Sandi Hibbs, Andrea Perrine, and Ragazzo, all of whom went 2-for-3 at the plate.

This week Corn was scheduled to face Larry's Corner Tavern on Tuesday with arch-rival 3 Seasons on Thursday at 6:30 at Mercer County Park.

Second Tourney Title. The Corn opened its defense of the United States Slowpitch Softball Association New Jersey title with an 11-0 drubbing of the Camden entry. Jean Ruppert homered and hit two singles in a perfect day at bat. Carol Whitehouse went 3-for-3 in the second game as the Corn defeated the Perth Amboy team, 4-1. Baxter was the winning pitcher in both games.

The third game was pivotal. Corn and Hyer Ford were locked in a scoreless tie after seven innings. Hyer went ahead, 1-0, in the top of the eighth. In Corn's last at-bat Ragazzo led off with a single, and Nicholson followed with a home run to deep centerfield to win the game, 2-1.

Corn then knocked off the Teddy Bears, a team that had defeated them in another tournament last year, 6-3. The loss dropped the Bears into the loser's bracket, from which they emerged to face the Corn again, this time with the championship at stake. Sweet Jersey prevailed again, 9-1. Baxter won all five games as pitcher and Nicholson was voted most valuable player of the tournament.

PLAYOFF SPOTS SET

In Princeton Men's League. Princeton Nautilus (16-2), Conte's Bar-Staats (15-2), Mike's Tavern (15-3), and the Princeton Italian-American Sportsmen's Club (12-5) all have clinched playoff berths in the Princeton Men's Softball League.

PIASC secured its spot in a memorable way: with a 11-0, no-hit victory over Marita's Cantina (t-16). Mario DiVincenzi came within one walk, in the fifth inning, of recording a perfect game. Two-run triples by John Pirone and Mike Santoro and a solo home run by Tony Pirone provided offensive support.

Nautilus continued its winning ways and maintained its half-game lead over Conte's by rolling over Micawber Books, t5-2. Steve Simenx stroked a two-run homer.

Bob Pazdan banged a three-run homer to pace Conte's to an 11-1 victory over the Medical Center.

Mike's shut out Hinkson's, 6-0, despite a 3-for-3 day by the losers' Steve Pappaterra. Reid Horovitz had a two-run single and Wayne Johnson and Bob Zinsmeister each had two hits for Mike's.

Ruppert Chowins, Rick Gallagher, John Cifelli, and Ted Garrity all went 3-for-4 to pace Stefanelli's to a 16-t defeat of Skirm's.

PRINCETON STRUGGLES

In Legion Baseball. Princeton's Post 76 continued to baffle the opposition — and perhaps itself — in Mercer County American Legion baseball last week. Post 76 knocked off a tough Hamilton squad and then shocked first place Broad Street Park before losing to lowly Mitchell Davis and Hightstown.

Princeton finished the week one game under .500 with a 10-11 record.

Craig Ender, Dave Arendas, and Mickey Carnevale hit singles in the sixth inning to produce the winning run in the 4-3 defeat of Hamilton. Carnevale had two RBIs and Gavin Hulsman, one of the league batting leaders with a .428 mark, doubled for the winners. Bill Feus raised his won-lost mark to 3-1.

Broad Street Park's seven-game winning streak hit the skids against Post 76. Arendas and Jamie Taylor gave up five hits between them in the easy 8-0 victory. Carnevale again provided offensive power, with two doubles and three RBIs. Hulsman doubled and singled and Darren Villani had three hits in four at-bats with two RBIs.

DIVING SPOTLIGHT: Nassau Swim Club diver Rebecca Jones basks in the sunlight in front of the record board after setting a new mark in the 12 and under girls diving competition against Brooktree. Rebecca broke a record she set last year and also placed first in the 17 and under diving division. She picked up another first place in the Nessau-West Windsor meet.

Taylor got credit for the win, which was Princeton's seventh in nine games and which was his third against two losses.

Costly Wild Pitch. Princeton entered the game with Mitchell Davis with more than twice as many victories and appeared headed for an easy win, leading 7-2 in the top of the seventh. Then Mitchell Davis exploded for five runs to tie the game.

In the top of the eighth Don McKinnis singled to lead off the inning, and took second on a sacrifice bunt. Taylor, on the mound for Post 76, took a come-backer to the mound and tried to catch McKinnis off of second. But he advanced to third and then scored the winning run on a wild pitch.

Princeton faltered again against Hightstown, 6-2. The Post 76 batters were handcuffed by Tim Dey, who had entered the game with a personal losing streak of six games. But he struck out 10 en route to his first victory of the season. The Princeton team managed only six singles.

NASSAU DROPS TWO

In Swim Competition. Nassau Swim Club lost to arch-rival West Windsor, 206-113, and to Brookstone Swim Club of East Brunswick, 179-143, in area swimming competition last week.

Two Nassau swimmers scored double wins in the West Windsor meet. Christine Jensen set a new record in the 8 and under girls' backstroke and also captured first place in the 8 and under freestyle.

Jane Skillman won the 10 and under butterfly and swam the lead-off leg of the victorious medley relay team, which also included Ashley Dixon, Cindy Wetherald, and Brooke Wuthnow. Jane also placed second in the 12 and under individual medley.

The Nassau boys 200-yard medley relay team of Russell Levine, Bobbin Tuleya, Scott Petrone, and Frederick Beer won its race, as did Aaron Zwicker in the 8 and under boys breast stroke. Other first place swimmers for Nassau included Ashley Dixon in the 50-yard backstroke for 12 and under; Kiran Cummins, 17 and under backstroke; and Scott Petrone, 12 and under butterfly.

Nassau scored two firsts in the diving events. Rebecca Jones prevailed in the 12 and under girls' division; Adam Haycock won the boys' event in that age category.

Triple Winner. Against Brooktree Ashley Dixon scored three first places in the 10 and under competition for Nassau: in the individual medley, backstroke, and relay. Christine Jensen registered her second double of the the week, winning the 8 and under butterfly and relay and also scored a second place in the 10 and under individual medley.

Rebecca Jones scored a double win in the diving, setting a record in the 12 and under competition and also placing first in the 17 and under event. Adam Haycock won the boys' 12 and under division.

NASSAU POINT SCORERS: Despite their team's 179-143 loss to East Brunswick's Brookstone Swim Club, these Nassau Swim Club competitors manege to flash winning smiles. They are, from the left, Aaron Zwicker, who placed first in the 12 and under freestyle relay; Adam Haycock, a double winner, in the 12 and under diving and 10 and under breaststroke; Giles Haycock, second in the 12 and under diving; and Benjamin Sharlin, a nine-year-old who placed fourth in the 17 and under diving competition.

Other winners for Nassau included Rebecca Dryer, 8 and under breast stroke; Jane Skillman, 10 and unde freestyle; Sarah Deffeyes, 1 and under breast stroke; Matthew Sanderson, 14 and under breast stroke; Alexander Johnson, 8 and under freestyle; and Adam Haycock, 10 and under breast stroke.

Rabbi Schnur

box. "The maximum is ambitious," she concedes.

Place for Ritual. She believes that in life cycle events, such as weddings, births, baby-namings, there are "wonderful rituals to be discovered." She sees a role for herself in "remanufacturing" these rituals, "stealing from tradition because they feel right spiritually." As an example she cites a pre-wedding ceremony in which the couple stands under the tallis and are pelted with candy. An ancient ceremony that has been done for thousands of years, Ms. Schnur alters it by adding beautiful love poetry by such moderns as Pablo Neruda.

Another ancient wedding ceremony has the woman circling seven times around the man. Feminist to the core, she insists that if it is done, the man will also circle around the woman seven times. Similarly, if a glass is to be broken after the wedding ceremony, a ritual traditionally performed by the groom to symbolize the sorrow that exists in the midst of joy, she will have the bride break one too.

Equality is Key. For Ms. Schnur, feminism is a statement of egalitarianism. "What I mean by that is a sensitivity to the oppressed, which is a very Jewish idea, but at its best it means understanding the rights of anyone." She feels that "sexist stuff is a basic ethical issue," and one of her goals for the Jewish Community Center is to form "a deliberate ethical community."

"I am interested in social action," she says, "and I use whatever I can to talk about issues — ecological issues, civil rights, poverty — whatever the human issues are." Her sermons are more apt to be dialogue than outright preaching or teaching. "I talk, they talk back," Ms. Schnur observes.

Special Place of Retiglon. Believing, as she does, that there are "times in your life when you need to readjust your relationships, otherwise they get out of hand," she values the High Holidays as times to think about the year just past, to clarify values and basic priorities in one's work life and home life. "I have significantly changed my life because of the High Holidays," she says. "One year I decided to take in a foster child, another time it was to change something toward Lennie.

"That seems real important — the idea of having special times for thinking about things, of being time-oriented rather than space-oriented, as most of us are most of the time. I don't see that happening in other places. I don't see it structured into American life except in the religious community.

"Rituals are a way to present that stuff — not God stuff, not law stuff, but responsibility."

Similarly Ms. Schnur observes the 25-hour no-work rule of the Sabbath as a way of "creating a quality to the day that's a pensive one for thinking about relationships, seeing the natural world without the interference of technology and doing some sort of charity. If done with that intention, by the end of the day there is an incredible sense of reanimation," she says.

God plays a minor role in Ms. Schnur's non-hierarchical view of what modern Judaism should be, and she likes to take all the second person pronouns out of the prayer book. "I have no use for telling God how great he is," she says. "I'm grateful to God, but if I was God I wouldn't need to be told."

Good Match. Robert Fass, Montgomery High School teacher who has been elected the second president of the burgeoning congregation, is enthusiastic about the young rabbi. "She is cheerful and energetic, exhibits a bit of showmanship, but also a life force. The congregation is appreciative of Susan's enthusiasm and her ability to make Judaism fit the 20th century lifestyle."

He describes the congregation as "small, humanistic, very flexible, meeting the needs of families in which both parents work." Professional people and "everyday" people make up the membership which meets the first Friday of each month at the Burnt Hill School and in the Montgomery First Aid Squad building on Harlingen Road for the major holidays.

Other holidays are observed as well, and there are adult study sessions and what Mr. Fass describes as a lot of social activities. Currently the Center runs four religious school classes, and a large part of the services are geared around the children, he says, culminating in a special blessing for them. His goal for the Center — like Ms. Schnur's — lies in keeping the best traditions of the different sects of Judaism and imbuing them with a humanistic point of view.

As she does, he seeks a religious experience that is at once "lively, meaningful, contemporary, and personal."

The phone number at the Center is 466-2582.
